San Francisco Pride-goers!

We're looking to profile LGBTQ women and trans people, especially people of color, and those who recently moved to the U.S. attending San Francisco Pride weekend for a feature-length documentary, directed by Academy Award winning directors and hosted by LGBTQ advocate Raymond Braun. The documentary will air on a major streaming service.

Are you planning to participate in any aspect of San Francisco Pride this year?

Are you preparing for a life milestone, coming out story, or other first-time experience during or around the time of this year's Pride events?

Are you traveling to attend SF Pride because your town doesn't host an event?

Do you have strong feelings (positive or negative) about SF Pride or the concept of Pride in general?

Do you have an issue (physical disability, legal issue, family concerns, etc.) that may affect your participation in Pride?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, we want to hear from you!

To share your story or nominate someone, submit this form with the following information:

- Name
- Age ( Must be 18 or older)
- City, State
- The best phone number to reach you
- Briefly tell us your story and why this year's Pride is pivotal for you — this can be in writing or in a brief video.

Thank you!

Our commitment to diversity: As much as possible, we will endeavor to highlight diversity within the LGBTQ community in our on-camera subjects and crew. We are focused on hiring people of color, as well as trans and gender non-conforming, disabled, and queer voices. Please help us share this casting announcement so we can make every effort to reflect as many perspectives as possible within our narrative structure.
